Japanese War Photographs.

Never before were the photographers so busy; it is said that they have not been able to fulfill half of the demands made upon them. The hundreds of thousands of men sent to the war wished to leave photographs with their families, and also photographs with their families, and also to take with them portraits of parents, children and other beloved persons. The nation was being photographed during the past six months.

During the last twenty years there has gradually come into existence the custom of placing the photograph of a dead parent, brother husband, or child beside the mortuary tablet kept in the Buddhist household shrine. For this reason, also, the departing soldier wishes to leave at home a good likeness of himself.—Lafcadio Heara, in the Atlantic. 11433 | dlo Hearp, in the Atlantic.

INGROWING NAIL MAY CAUSE DEATH

Special to The Tribune.

HICHFIELD, Dec. 1.—A painful malady that had its origin in an ingrowing toe-nall has given Benjamin Barney, an aged resident of Brooklyn, a settlement near Elsinore, a lot of suffering and distress for nearly three years past, and is now bringing him to the verge of the grave.

In the summer of 1992 he had a nall on the hig toe of his right foot which gave him some trouble. He triumed the nall with a common pocket-knife. Inflammation set in and the too became as diseased that it rotted off. The other

Brooklyn, a settlement near Elsinore, a lot of suffering and distress for nearly three years past, and is now bringing him to the verge of the grave.

In the summer of 1992 he had a nail on the big toe of his right foot which gave him some trouble. He triumed the nail with a common pocket-knife. Inflammation set in and the foo became so diseased that it rotted off. The other toes followed, one safter another, until but the little member remained. The "sloughing off process extended up the inside of the foot until the diseased part reached underneath the insten. Here, the past summer, the disease scemed to arrest itself and the sore apparently healed up. Mr. Barney began to recover his usual health, and it was thought that he was entirely over his treuble and its effects. About a couple or three weeks ago Mr. Berney caught a cold, which settled in the affilicted foot. Inflammation set in again and the "sloughing off" has been renewed in a more aggravated form than ever. Mr. Barney has been brought to the brink of the grave once more, and it is not expected that he will recover. The wound is more painful than ever and has reached such proportions that it is affecting his whole system. He is about 67 years of age.

Mrs. Maria Morrison of this city died yesterday forenoon at the age of 28 years. She had been an invalid for nearly two years, and for weeks had been confined to her bed in an almost helpless condition as the result of a stroke of paralysis. She was a widow of the late William Morrison, whom she married at Mt. Pleaant in 1852.

Mrs. Morrison was a native of Denmark and came to this country with her widowed mother. Mrs. Morrison was a native of Denmark and came to this country with her widowed mother in 1839. They settled first at Ethraim, then moved to Mt. Pleasant, and, after her marriage in 1831, the deceased came with her husband to Serier county. They were among the first settlers of Richfield, but had to retire to Sampete county on account of the Indian troubles in early times. After peace had been established they resettled here and lived until their deaths. Seven children were born to the couple, all of whom are living Fred Hansen of this city is now the only living member of the deceased's brothers.

The first mow of the season began last evening as a big surprise, coming cuite unexpectedly and not in the usual manner. Without any wind and blustering preludes, as is usualily a forcumer of storm, a light, fine snow began falling about 5 o'clock and kept up most of the night. Nearly two inches was found on the ground this morning. It is hoped the storm will have some effect in checking the epidenic of diseases in the valley.

The change of railroad superintendents on the Denver & Rio Grande road is greatly wel-comed in this part of the State. It is hoped now that some changes can be made which will improve the service on the branch of the road south of Manti. Mr. Welby is very favorably and thenceforth never parmits it to grow. There are a great many women in Japan, and especially in the heart of the country, where foreign influence has never reached, who wear their hair bobbed like a small boy's and oftentimes parted jauntity on the side, and by this sign one may be sure that they are widows, and that they hang many prayer-silps at the temple doors and give their passing days in patient, sweet devotion to the family and the home wherein they are sure to be much loved. —Eleanor Franklin, in Lesties Weekly. When a Japanese woman becomes a wildow it is customary for her to cut off a part of her hatr and bury it in the coffin with the bedy of her husband, but as she may please herself about it this sacrifice is not often large enough to spoil her pretty colifure, unless, indeed, she determine to wear forever the badge of widowhood, and give her life in comilete devotion to the memory of the described in which case she cuts it all off.
